MUSICALES AT HAPPY HOLLOW

Table d'Hôte Dinner Will Precede the Program to Be Given Under the Direction of Mrs. A. G. Edwards.

Even Up.

What man knows better than the chap you've wed? What hat looks best on your dainty head? Yet which you wear, the blue one or the yellow. Depends oftentimes upon some other fellow.

What woman has more chance to learn your style? Than she, your wife? Yet nearly all the time you wear the ties she happens to detest—And all because some girl like these this best.

—The Observer.

Incidental to the convention of the Nebraska Federation of Women's Clubs held in the city last week was a round of smart social affairs complimentary to some of the visiting delegates. Largest of all these was the banquet tendered the delegates by the Omaha Women's club Thursday evening at the Rookery hotel, at which nearly 600 women were present. Thursday afternoon was given over to social affairs, among which was the informal reception by the Society of Fine Arts, given that the visiting women might meet Mrs. Jean Sherwood of Chicago, and the opening of the Lister art gallery and home through the courtesy of Mrs. Lindner and Mrs. Haller. The reception to the visiting Daughters of the American Revolution at the home of Mrs. Anna Metcalf Tuesday afternoon was another charming affair of the week. And besides these larger affairs there was a round of luncheons and dinners at the homes of the club members at which Mrs. Sherwood and other out-of-town women were guests of honor.

The musicale to be given at Happy Hollow Thursday evening under the direction of Mrs. A. G. Edwards will be a feature of the week and promises one more big occasion for the club before the season closes formally Halloween night. The success of last year's program, which was also given under Mrs. Edwards' direction, adds interest to the program to which some of the leading musicians of the city will contribute. A table d'hôte dinner will be served preceding the program. The Tuesday night table d'hôte dinner and dance at Happy Hollow is discontinued this week, which promises to make the Thursday evening privileges the more appreciated while the season lasts. Contributing to the program will be Miss Lorenzen and Miss Louise Jansen, vocalists, and Miss Louise Shattuck, violinist, who have recently studied abroad; Mr. Fred Ellis, vocalist, and Miss Corinne Paulson, pianist.

The debutantes and the brides to be are two of the interesting subjects of conversation just now, especially as they are to be central figures in some of the biggest things scheduled for the winter. Miss Marion Haller is to be first of the debutantes, Mr. and Mrs. Haller having arranged a dancing party for Wednesday evening of this week at which she will be formally introduced. All of the other young women will be presented before the holidays and society is anticipating a gay winter.

As sequels to some of the weddings several interesting wedding tours are being chatted about. One of these fortunate brides is to go abroad for several months, while some of the other trips include various interesting places over the country from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

At Happy Hollow.

Miss Alice Gates and the members of the Thimble club gave a dinner of twenty-two covers Saturday evening at Happy Hollow. They were seated at the round table, which had autumn decorations.
